

Dear Madame or Sir,

We are happy to inform you that EUROPEUM Institute for European Policy – a Prague-based think-tank that undertakes program, project, publishing and training activities related to the European integration process – organizes 15th annual European Summer School for university students in July 2017. The programme focuses on current issues that the European Union faces, with a special focus on Euroscepticism and its manifestations in member states. European Summer School is organized under auspices of the European Commission Representation in the Czech Republic, in cooperation with Prague College and Faculty of Social Science of Charles University in Prague.

The European Summer School under a title "Challenged Union: Making Sense of the Troublemakers (…or at least trying to)" will take place in Prague July 15-25 2017. We have prepared early-bird discounts for those who apply before January 31st and have also a new program of scholarships!

You can find further information on our homepage, you can see the promotion leaflet enclosed or the video from last year's program here.

We would greatly appreciate if you could help us spread this information among your students. We have excellent experience with cooperation with your university and would be happy to welcome your students again this year!

Thank you in advance for your kind help.

Sincerely,

Zuzana Stuchlíková
European Summer School 2017 coordinator
