Europe: Our past is our Future

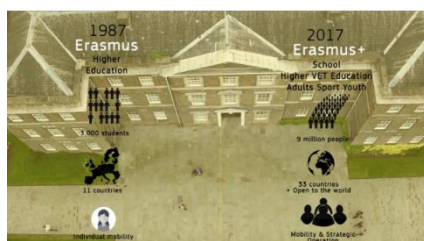

To celebrate this year's Europe Day, Domenico Lenarduzzi discusses the story of Europe, a story of peace and democracy, prosperity and opportunity, with his grandson, Raffaele Vaccaro. Domenico had the idea of the Erasmus study programme 30 years ago, in 1987. Since then, Erasmus has given 9 million people the chance to study, train, volunteer or gain professional experience abroad. At this critical moment in history, it is worthwhile remembering the principles that unite us, as Europeans, and our vision for our common future.

Erasmus+ bringing Europeans together for 30 years

Since its inception in 1987, the Erasmus Programme has become one of the most successful and iconic programmes of the European Union. Over the last thirty years, the European Union's programmes in the fields of education, training and youth – now gathered in Erasmus+ – have not only achieved but also surpassed their objectives of promoting mobility, developing key skills and strengthening common European values and identity; they have given 9 million people a chance to study, train, volunteer or gain professional experience abroad. Young people who took part in these programmes are not only more employable, but are also more open to diversity and feel closer to European ideals. Let's now build the future of this programme post-2020 together!

Stock shots: Erasmus+ 2017

The EU's Erasmus programme is celebrating its 30 years this year. For three decades, this flagship programme has given 9 million people - in particular young people - opportunities to gain new experiences and broaden their horizons by going abroad. The current Erasmus+ programme, running from 2014 to 2020, has a budget of €14.7 billion and will provide opportunities for over 4 million people to study, train, gain work experience and volunteer abroad. This new video stock shot provides illustration footage of various parts of the Erasmus+ programme: higher education (Germany, Cyprus, Poland, Belgium, and Spain), schools (France), youth workers (Greece), vocational training (Spain) and adult education (Sweden) filmed in Spring 2017
